the submission of data is only the FIRST STEP in the publication of your data!

by submitting data your data file(s) is uploaded into an editorial system, NOT into the data archive.

A data-curator will approach you and stay in contact until your data is prepared and ready for archiving and publication.

1.) log in or 2.) sign up

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL <http://pangaea.de/submit/>. The page header includes the PANGAEA logo and the text "PANGAEA® Data Publisher for Earth & Environmental Science". A navigation bar contains the text "Submit Data to PANGAEA". The main content area features a welcome message and three bullet points with green checkmarks: "Benefits", "Data preparation and quality control", and "Costs". A central message states: "Before submitting your data you need to log in! You can sign up for a user account at PANGAEA here." The words "log in" and "sign up" are circled in red. Above this message, the numbers "2.)" and "1.)" are placed. Below the message, a link "Further details about data submission to PANGAEA" is circled in red. A red box with a pointer contains the text "information on" followed by a list: "- metadata", "- format", "- workflow", and "- examples". The top right corner of the page says "Not logged in (log in or sign up)". The bottom right corner has a "Contact" link.

Sign Up

You can sign up for a user account using this form. This account can be used to access more advanced services (like our data warehouse) or access data under moratorium, or submit data using the issue tracker.

Most of the data are freely available and can be used under the terms of the license mentioned on the data set description. A few password protected data sets are under moratorium from ongoing projects. The description of each data set is always visible and includes the principle investigator (PI) who may be asked for access.
